Hair Loss Expert Stars in Film Celebrating “The Combover”

DENVER – Oct. 3, 2005 – Denver doctor James Harris, who literally wrote the book on ways to reverse hair loss, is proud to be featured in a film that celebrates the “combover.” Combover: The Movie, premieres November 17 at the Denver International Film Festival. It was directed and produced by Denver filmmakers Chris Marino and Tim Fenoglio.

“While I stay very busy helping men and women with hair loss, I appreciate that there are some men who embrace the combover,” said Dr. Harris, a head and neck plastic surgeon whose practice is limited solely to medical and surgical hair restoration. “I want people to be happy with the hair they have. If a combover brings you joy, I see no reason to intervene.”

Dr. Harris, creator of the Harris SAFE System and Scribe™, is “the hair loss expert” in Combover, according to Marino. “I was excited to be asked by Chris to help with his unique project. I appreciate that he created a balanced and entertaining film.”

Marino said he chose Dr. Harris for the movie because he wanted to feature a respected physician who could explain why men and women sometimes have hair loss, and what medical options they have. “A bonus for me was to discover that Dr. Harris has a great sense of humor. It was clear to me that he really enjoyed the concept of the film,” Marino said.

While this is Dr. Harris’ first appearance in a documentary, he is familiar to many people as the author of The Hair Replacement Revolution, a book he co-wrote with Dr. Emanuel Marritt. The book educates consumers on the physical causes and psychological ramifications of hair loss and presents the facts about legitimate treatment options while increasing awareness of industry myths.
